

I am not in favor of any federal legislation that would weaken the State of Wisconsin "Do Not Call" list. Since the inception of the law, I have noticed a dramatic decrease in the number of nuisance calls I have received from telemarketers. I prefer to keep it that way! As a consumer who is paying for home and cell phone services, I definitely DO NOT want any increase in nuisance calls from businesses trying to sell me products or services. Why should I have to pay for their marketing efforts? This is one example of "States Rights" (regarding legislation) that should not be tampered with to appease business lobbyists.
